

EB-1 China and EB-1 India Retrogress; No Movement for EB-2 and EB-3 India

The January 2023 Visa Bulletin was released. It shows something we have not seen in awhile - EB-1 China and EB-1 India are no longer current.

EB-1 China and EB-1 India Final Action Dates both fell back to February 1, 2022. (The Date for Filing is June 1, 2022) This represents increased filings in the EB-1 preference category for those trying to avoid the longer EB-2 and EB-3 backlogs.

Unfortunately, EB-2 India and EB-3 India did not move at all. It is more cold water in the face of those who could not complete their I-485 process in 2021 or 2022.

Overall, the Department of State estimates that the FY 2023 employment-based annual limit will be approximately 197,000, due to approximately 57,000 unused family-based numbers from FY 2022. This is down from approximately 281,500 in FY 2022, and obviously portends for much slower movement going forward.
