

Lippes Mathias Wexler Friedman LLP Co-Hosting Upcoming Foreign Currency Hedging Event

November 10, 2016 | PRESS RELEASES

BUFFALO, NY – Elizabeth L. Perry, a partner at Lippes Mathias Wexler Friedman LLP, is presenting at “Foreign Currency Hedging: Strategies & Tools for Managing Uncertain Markets,” an informational event co-hosted by the firm and Citizens Commercial Banking on November 30 at The Buffalo Club. Ms. Perry is speaking on “Cross-Border Estate Planning Strategies,” including a discussion of planning for multi-national families and planning issues related to cross-border investments.

Designed for c-level executives at middle-market sized corporate entities, the event features presentations and discussion around the current challenges and opportunities that are facing companies that do business globally. In addition to Ms. Perry’s presentation, Razvan Ionescu, vice president in Citizens Global Markets group, will explore how to best plan, execute and monitor currency risk when conducting business overseas, including main hedging solutions and key issues when engaging in currency hedging.

Ms. Perry is the leader of the firm’s trusts and estates practice group and works with clients to create estate plans tailored to meet personal goals and objectives with a focus on income, estate, gift and generation-skipping transfer tax issues. Additionally she focuses on succession planning for family and closely-held businesses, elder law issues, trust and estate litigation and estate administration.

Space is limited. Please RSVP by November 25 to Mary Kate McLaughlin at 716-216-3939 or mmclaughlin@lippes.com.
